Where: The Montcalm Hotel, 34 - 40 Great Cumberland Place, London, W1H 7TW, United Kingdom

What: A conference for Information and Data Management professionals who plan, implement, manage and support information infrastructures.

The Information Infrastructure Conference (IIC) takes place on the 6th of June and is aimed at IT professionals, decision makers and influencers who need to understand not just the important elements of today's Information Infrastructure, but the "big picture" of how to assemble the elements into cost effective solutions that support the latest applications and services.

The IIC focuses on opportunities, challenges, and advances associated with information infrastructure as it relates to big data and analytics, cloud services, storage and data management and protection, infrastructure convergence, data centre networking, security and all aspects of IT virtualisation. The event is designed to educate and inform delegates while providing the opportunity to meet and network with many of the leading technology manufactures, software vendors, and solutions providers in an open multi-vendor environment.
